

Joha Makes a Wish: A Middle Eastern Tale

Eric A. Kimmel

Omar Rayyan, Illustrator

Marshall Cavendish (Feb 13, 2010)

Hardcover $17.99 (40pp)

978-0-7614-5599-8

When Joha's curiosity causes him to open a mysterious jar, he discovers a wooden stick wrapped in parchment. The note reads, "Stranger, you have found a wishing stick. Use it wisely. It can make your wishes come true." Joha thinks it's his lucky day, but he soon discovers that all of his wishes result in the opposite of what he wants! Instead of being granted a new pair of slippers, his worn-out sandals disappear from his feet! So when a procession is headed down the main street, Joha refuses to wish the sultan a long life, for he fears that the opposite will be true. The sultan is furious, and Joha runs for his life. Suddenly, he spies a shopkeeper, who helps him hide and informs him that he has been holding the stick upside-down! "Joha stories" are a fixture of Arabic folklore; this particular rendition is filled with words and illustrations that will teach children about ancient Middle Eastern culture while surely making them laugh. For ages five to eight.

LYDIA BELANGER (July / August 2010)

Disclosure: This article is not an endorsement, but a review. The publisher of this book provided free copies of the book to have their book reviewed by a professional reviewer. No fee was paid by the publisher for this review. Foreword Reviews only recommends books that we love. Foreword Magazine, Inc. is disclosing this in accordance with the Federal Trade Commission's 16 CFR, Part 255.