Most of us don't have a friend like Arjun to explain to us about sanatana dharma, varnas, samskaras, and atman, but Cameron's Hindu pal shows him that we only fear what we don't know. In this concise, approachable story, Khadija Ejaz opens up a world of cultural awareness that's both curiosity driven and easy to absorb. Photos, familiar concepts and themes, and charming characters root the educational bits in modern reality, so children can better connect with and understand the religion and lifestyle explored. Ages eight and up.
