In the snowy Minnesota woods, a family of three straps on snowshoes and skitters across the frozen landscape, seeking out a place to set up camp. They hunker down by a frozen lake, where a cozy night precedes a day of exploration. Animal and people sightings remind them that they are not alone. This wordless picture book introduces new delights on every page; it will ignite the imaginations of young adventurers, reminding them that outdoor treks are possible in all seasons, if you're prepared.
