

Recovering Place: Reflections on Stone Hill

Mark C. Taylor

Columbia University Press (Feb 25, 2014)

Hardcover $35.00 (176pp)

978-0-231-16498-6

Indescribable—except to mention the author’s position as professor of religion at Columbia, and that it contains some of the finest prose and photography you’ll find anywhere—consequently, we will now commit the unpardonable sin of stealing a line from the publisher’s press materials: “This timely meditation gives pause in the midst of harried lives and turns attention toward what we usually overlook: night, silence, touch, grace, ghosts, water, earth, stones, bones, idleness, infinity, slowness, and contentment.”

A weird, wonderful, wallop-packing work of untethered spirituality.

MATT SUTHERLAND (Summer 2014)

Disclosure: This article is not an endorsement, but a review. The publisher of this book provided free copies of the book to have their book reviewed by a professional reviewer. No fee was paid by the publisher for this review. Foreword Reviews only recommends books that we love. Foreword Magazine, Inc. is disclosing this in accordance with the Federal Trade Commission’s 16 CFR, Part 255.