When a flamboyance of flamingos moves into the neighborhood, the other neighbors are disturbed by their bright colors, long necks, and food trucks. From a “squadron of pelicans” to a “band of jays,” the birds decide to take a stand against the flamingos, but find only a warm welcome when they arrive. With bright colors and an educational list of bird groupings for budding birders, this picture book shows how birds of all feathers can flock together.
