Soft illustrations help tell the story of a baby sea turtle who follows city lights instead of the stars and ends up lost and confused. Animals try to help him by suggesting he could be a painted turtle or a terrapin, and although he gives it a try, he doesn't think that's what he's supposed to be. Nicely told in rhymes. Fun facts and test sheets follow up. A good book for solo reading in class; take the quizzes at the end.
