Join young Yodel, a one-year-old black bear cub, as he learns how to survive and have fun in the North American woodlands alongside his rambunctious brother and sister. Amazing full-color photographs capture the cubs and their mother climbing trees, foraging for food, napping, and wrestling, while extended pages of educational activities examine nests, tracks, dens, diets, and all things black bear-related for a closer look at one of America's most extraordinary natives.
